FUD FINDS INNER CHILD KIDS EAT FREE

DESTIN, FL Local restaurateur, Father Fud, has been released from Destin's Home for Troubled Children following a court-ordered observation in which it was determined that he was not insane and did not pose a threat to others.

Fud was sent for observation after being seen dressed as an infant by several distressed women in an upstairs dining room of Fudpucker's Beachside Bar & Grill. Wearing nothing more than a large diaper and baby's cap with matching bib, Fud allegedly was sitting in a high chair throwing food and shouting, "Kids eat for FREE!" at the top of his lungs.

"At first we all thought he was so cute!" noted regular customer, Ida Smactem, "but when he started screaming and throwing French fries, we had to wonder where his mother was." Her close friend, Kay Ottic added, "A child like that really shouldn't be left unattended."

Shortly after Fud's release, the attending psychiatrist, Dr. Lou Kneebin responded to questions about Fud's sanity by saying, "Yes! He's definitely crazy. How else can you explain his letting children eat for free?" However, he added, "that doesn't make Fud dangerous, unless of course you've got kids as big as him. They could do a lot of damage to Fudpucker's bank account."
